

Four Students Receive Honors

Scholarships Awarded To Rural School Students

Each year the Board of the Wainwright School Division makes an award of four scholarships of $100.00 each to four students who have taken Grade IX in rural schools.

Two of these scholarships are awarded to girls and two to boys. To be eligible for a scholarship the student must first of all receive an A standing on the Grade nine Departmental Examinations. The students are also given a series of short tests by the Chairman of the Board and the Sup't. of Schools in the Division.

The scholarships are granted only on the condition that the student continues work in Grade X. Fifty dollars is paid in September at the time of registration and fifty dollars is paid in January when the student shows that he or she is continuing to do satisfactory work.

This year the winners of the awards were as follows:

Girls:

1. Della Christopherson, H. Standing, of the Gerald School at Wainwright; 2. Irene Dubasz, A. Standing, Ross School at Irma.

Boys:

1. Eric Dallow, H. Standing, Alma Mater School of Irma; 2. Wm. Spornitz, A. Standing, Heath school of Heath.

Eric Dallow had the highest standing with all H's.

In each case the first student mentioned attended small correspondence centres. Gerald had ten pupils and Alma Mater had five pupils.

The students in second place were in each case from large rural schools with teachers in charge. The Ross school had twenty-four pupils while Heath had twenty-six pupils.

George Archibald Wed at Rocky

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Presbyterian Church, Rocky Mountain House, at two o'clock Thursday afternoon, Aug. 11, when Irene Mary, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Rahko of Oras, and Mrs. George Edward Archibald, only son of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Archibald of Irma, exchanged vows.

Rev. H. G. Marsh performed the ceremony for which the bride was given away by her eldest brother Mr. Nick Rahko of Sylvan Lake. She wore a gown of Oyster Pink Dutchess satin, with a sweetheart neckline, and a yoke trimmed with seed pearls. Her finger tip veil was held in place by a Juliet cap trimmed with matching seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses, and wore as her only jewelry a three strand pearl necklace, a gift of the groom.

The maid of honor, Miss Edie Schlenning, chose a gown of pale mauve taffeta, and wore a two strand pearl necklace. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations, with a matching corsage in her hair.

Miss Eileen Tiilonen, of Sylvan Lake, niece of the bride, was bridesmaid, in a gown of pale yellow nylon. She wore a one strand pearl necklace and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Mr. Terho Rahko, a brother of the bride, was best man. Mr. Eddie Tiilonen, of Sylvan Lake, a nephew of the bride, was usher.

After the ceremony, a reception for thirty-five guests, was held in the basement of the church. The bride's table was set with a lace tablecloth, centred with a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Bouquets of summer flowers decorated the room. A toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Bob Morton, to which the groom responded.

The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. E. Tiilonen; Mr. Geo. Brown; Mr. and Mrs. Nick Rahko, all of Sylvan Lake; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Archibald and daughters Jennene and Lorna; Mrs. Sid Pavely, Mrs. Herb Larson, of Irma; Miss Ruth Thompson of Calgary.

The bridal couple left the following day for a week's honeymoon at Irma, Wainwright and Edmonton. For going away the bride chose a brown gabardine suit with a pale blue topcoat and white accessories.

Death's Handyman

By Joseph Lister Rutledge

We like to rise in our wrath and impute the rising toll of traffic accidents to all sorts of causes. Liquor stands first in our minds, and perhaps it is well even if it isn't quite the truth, for liquor, behind the wheel, is quite a killer. But death's favorite handyman is our own stupid selves in our stupid moments. According to an extensive survey made by the Northwestern National Life Insurance company of Minneapolis, not liquor nor any other active hazard, but just plain dumbness was responsible for 44 per cent of all the fatal highway traffic accidents in the United States last year. You can divide that up too. Thirty-two per cent of the "dimwits" were drivers and 12 per cent were adult pedestrians who took a chance that the driver would save their lives in spite of themselves. Not bad roads, or bad driving conditions or bad machines, but just dumb chance-taking humans resulted in 14,000 highway deaths in the U.S. last year. We suspect that the average would hold here.

There are two contestants for the place of second-best killer. They are rudeness and drunkness. They share equal dishonor. The road hog who rides the centre line and the man who jumps the gun when the other fellow has the right of way are just as dangerous as the drunken driver. Each tallied 15 per cent of all road traffic fatalities. Which ought to remind us all that you win no martyr's crown by dying at the wheel, or, letting others die for you because of your stupidity or rudeness or drunkness.

SEEDTIME and HARVEST

By DR. F. J. GREAWLEY

Line Elevators Farm Service, Wainwright, Manitoba.

Care in Harvesting Barley Pays
The quality of barley, particularly in the West, is generally poor. Mr. Max Uhlisch of Carrot Creek, Alta., one brother Sam of Edmonton and one sister Mrs. C. T. Atkinson of Fabyan.

Harvesting, barley should not be cut until it is fully mature. The kernels should be firm and flinty hard. The harvest of barley before it has reached full maturity means a sacrifice of yield with no advantage in quality. Barley should either be windrowed (swathed), or cut with a binder and carefully stacked, before serious "necking" takes place resulting in loss of heads. In the case of light stands of barley, however, straight combining is recommended.

Threshing. No grain crop calls for more care in threshing than does malting barley. An otherwise first class crop of malting barley can be easily ruined by careless threshing. The malting trade strongly objects to a sample of barley that contains even a few kernels that are peeled (skinned), cracked or broken. Almost all of the peeling and breaking of barley kernels can be prevented by properly adjusting the combine or threshing machine. Here are some of the main reasons why barley kernels are damaged in threshing: (1) Too high cylinder speed. (2) End play in cylinder. (3) Concaves with too many teeth and set too close to the cylinder. (4) Too little seed, particularly on front sieve. (5) The use of dirty sieves which allow too heavy a return to the cylinder. Remember, the problem with barley is more in separation than in threshing. What ever else, avoid close threshing of barley. If you want to obtain the best price for your barley—thresh it carefully.

For further information on grain harvesting problems consult your Agricultural Representative, or write to your University, or nearest Dominion Experimental Station.

Exchange Of Farm Labour

A RECENT ISSUE OF THE Labour Gazette gives some interesting facts and figures concerning the movement of farm labour in Canada. While the exchange of workers between the East and the West at harvest time has gone on for many years, it is unlikely that the public is familiar with the extent of the interchange of workers between various parts of the country throughout the year. The Gazette reveals that in 1948 some 15,000 farm labourers moved from place to place across the country, from Halifax to Vancouver, and to the United States, to fill seasonal needs for help there. Last year 600 Canadians went to Maine to help with the potato harvest, while others went to Montana to work in the sugar beet fields and to Vermont to help with the production of maple sugar.

Workers Went To The West

The first organized movement of seasonal agricultural workers took place in 1896, when Western wheat farms were beginning to produce rich harvests. Large numbers of workers were needed each fall, and to help to meet this situation the railways operated "harvest specials", to transport men from the East who were willing to help with the harvests on the prairies. While this drew large numbers of workers, the need became apparent for a more organized arrangement for both the farmers and the labourers, and in 1920 the Dominion government undertook to give direction to this annual movement of labour. For some time the securing of help for the Western harvest was the main part of this undertaking, but as farming became more diversified the direction of seasonal workers to the districts in which their services were needed grew to be a more complex problem.

Important To Our Economy

This work was originally carried on by the Employment Service of Canada, but it is now under the Agricultural Division of National Selective Service. In addition, as a result of the Hyde Park Declaration of 1941, Canadian farm workers are permitted to go to the United States for seasonal work, and embassies are now associated in this expanding service. Of the 15,000 farm labourers who circulated throughout the country in 1948, some 3,000 came to the Western provinces for the wheat harvest, while 1,000 haymakers were moved to Ontario, and 1,300 tobacco pickers went to Ontario and Quebec. It is apparent that these seasonal farm workers have become an important part of our national economy, and that their services are vital to farmers in all parts of the country. The group of willing and venturesome men who took part in the first "harvest excursions" have proven to be the vanguard of a permanent body of essential workers whose numbers appear to be increasing steadily.

Estimated Wheat Crop In Canada

OTTAWA.—Canada's 1949 wheat crop is expected to be 391,500,000 bushels, 1,800,000 bushels less than last year and about 18,800,000 bushels less than the 10-year average for 1939-48.

The crop estimate was the first issued this year by the Bureau of Statistics which reported that the wheat is being harvested from a near-record seeded area estimated at 27,500,000 acres compared with 24,100,000 acres in 1948 and 23,500,000 acres for the 10-year average.

FAR EAST MARKET

Horse meat, canned in Swift Current, Sask., was shipped recently from Vancouver to Hong Kong, a market for this product having been developed in the Far East. It is expected that this initial shipment will be followed by others, and that further purchases will be made by buyers in the Belgian Congo.

Canadian Graves In Hong Kong Well Kept

REGINA.—Graves of Canadian war dead in Hong Kong are "beautifully maintained" by the war graves commission, D. B. Rogers, editor of the Regina Leader-Post, said on his return recently from an air tour of the north and south Pacific.

"The site of the cemetery—the Sal Wan Military cemetery—is magnificent. Rows of pine trees have been planted down each side of the hillside cemetery and flowers are blooming everywhere," Mr. Rogers said. Situated on a hill promontory with higher hills closing in on all sides, more than 1,000 white crosses are laid out in even rows down a steep terraced slope which reaches out towards the sea near the entrance of the harbor on Hong Kong island, he added.

"The Canadians are buried halfway down the slope and the thing that strikes you hardest is that there are no names on row after row of these crosses—just the eloquent designation 'unknown Canadian soldier'. The Japs made sure that no marks of identification would be left."

Farming Is Big Business In Canada

(By Canadian Press)

Farming is just about Canada's biggest business. More than $5,000,000,000 is invested in land, livestock and equipment and in average years Canadian farm produce is worth more than $1,500,000,000.

In addition, it's one of the Dominion's biggest export industries. This year Canada will get $280,000,000 in badly-needed United States dollars from just one aspect of its farm economy—the sale of wheat to the United Kingdom.

Total farm income, of course, isn't all gravy for the farmer. Farmers must spend a lot of that $1,500,000,000 for things like fertilizer, feed, gasoline and equipment.

In other words, the farmer's costs are income for somebody else. The manufacture of farm equipment, for example, provides jobs for thousands of Canadians—not only dealers and manufacturers, but also for workers in transport, metals and dozens of other industries.

The western prairies have been the traditional big market for farm machinery, but more and more, the tractor and the combine have been replacing the horse as the prime power source on eastern farms.

"Always subject to many local qualifications and special conditions," says the Federal Government of Agriculture in a survey of mechanization on eastern farms, it costs about $1,872 to outfit a 50-acre eastern farm, $5,845 for a 150-acre farm and $7,190 for a 250-acre farm.

That works out to $28.76 per acre for a farm of 250 acres and $37.44 for a farm of 50 acres.

The department warns, however, that a farmer can get too much equipment.

It points out that a man with 150 acres who bought—the department suggests it would be in "a moment of weakness"—a combine and a forage crop harvester, would send his mechanization costs zooming up to $48 an acre.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

"They tell me your wife is outspoken."

"By whom?"

Tragedian: "I think it within my rights to ask for real wine in the banqueting scene."

Parlor Maid—"And the guests all came in limousines, and had on the grandest clothes, and wore the biggest diamonds."

Gardener—"And what did they talk about?"

Maid—"Us."

Filling out an application for a job, the chap answered "no" to a question as to whether he had dependents.

"Say, you're married aren't you?" asked the clerk who knew him.

"Oh sure," came the answer, "but my wife ain't dependable."

An Irishman engaged in cleaning an observatory once noticed an amateur astronomer looking through a telescope. A few moments later, seeing a star fall, the son of Erin was heard to remark:

"Begorra, that chaps a crack shot!"

Clerk—"Sorry, madam, but Mr. Gotsch has just gone to lunch with his wife."

Mrs. Gotsch—"Oh! Well, then tell him his stenographer called."

Bored: "Speaking of Africa makes me think of the time—"

Bored: "Good heavens, you're quite right. I had no idea it was so late. Good-by."

"My dad takes things apart to see why they won't go."

"You'd better go."

Young Alberta Violinist Has First Train Ride

This 12-year-old Alberta farm boy, Alfred Myhre, never was on a train in his life, till he made a 2,200-mile train trip to the Canadian National Exhibition recently. Alfred won a chance to play on Edmonton Station CERN. Capt. J. S. Atkinson, of the C.N.E., heard the broadcast and was "astounded" to learn that the player was a young boy. He invited Alfred to Toronto. He was sent by the Edmonton radio station CERN to participate in the Old Time Fiddler Contest at the Canadian National Exhibition.

The first train ride in his young life was a long one for 12-year-old Alfred Myhre. Alone, the boy travelled from his home at Telford, Alberta to Toronto. He was sent by the Edmonton radio station CERN to participate in the Old Time Fiddler Contest at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Alfred commented simply before leaving: "It's my first train ride and I think it will be quite a lot of fun." Of his fiddle playing which has earned the trip, the Alberta farm boy promised: "I might be a bit nervous, but I'll do my best."

Motherless since he was four and a half years old, Alfred lives with his father and six other children on a small Alberta farm. The town-headed, blue-eyed youngster looks after cattle, his own geese and a three-year-old horse. Horses and the violin are his main hobbies. It is the violin which will carry him to the Exhibition.

When he was six years old Alfred Myhre heard a violinist perform at a community concert. After that he wanted a violin so badly his father bought one, though there was no music teacher in the community to instruct the boy. Alfred is completely self-taught. His father believes the boy inherited his mother's musical ability, she often sang at concerts.

When CERN and the Associated Canadian Travellers recently raised money for the Northern Alberta Crippled Children's Fund, they held a series of "Search for Talent" shows. When the show series reached Telford, Alfred's sister Esther entered him in the contest. It was the boy's first public appearance; his violin playing won him the chance to perform in the final show at Edmonton.

A National broadcast of that Edmonton "Search for Talent" show was heard by Capt. J. S. Atkinson in Toronto. Long time promoter of old time fiddling and square dancing in Canada, Capt. Atkinson directs the music competitions at the C.N.E. "I heard this old time fiddling with lots of pep and ginger," he said, "then I was astounded to hear the announcer say the player was a 12-year-old boy."

Capt. Atkinson wrote to G. A. Duffield, CERN manager, and the latter made arrangements to send Alfred to the Exhibition where he competed in the Old Time Fiddler's Contest. CERN mapped out Alfred's first train trip, arranged for railway officials, radio personnel and others to meet the boy at all stops enroute to Toronto.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

A GIRL MUST LIVE!

By C. V. TENCH

BERESFORD had barely seated himself in the taxi when he espied the bag behind the seat cushion. Ivory with black trimmings. Expensive looking. Glancing guiltily at the back of the driver's head he opened the purse. Definitely its owner favored exotic perfume. A chiffon handkerchief with the initial Y. Compact and lipstick suggesting a woman of fair hair and coloring. A five-dollar bill and some silver. Cards engraved with the name and address of a Mrs. Glenison Cartwright. A small memorandum pad on which was written in a delicate hand: Telephone Ted; ditto Beatrice; call at Jewellers; cocktails, The Barn, Arthur; dinner at 7 with ? He decided to return the bag to its person. Leaning forward, he gave the driver the address.

The apartment looked expensive. In response to his name, a trim maid answered, took his name. Presently Mrs. Cartwright appeared. She was, Beresford decided, breath-takingly lovely. She wore a clinging black dinner gown which emphasized the perfection of her figure. Beresford straightened his tie. "I found this bag in a taxi and—" "And it intrigued you?" Mrs. Cartwright laughed merrily. "And you could not resist seeing what its owner looked like?"

Beresford laughed. "I don't know exactly why but—" "Of course you do," Mrs. Cartwright finished. "It is the yearning for adventure in all of us." Then, as Beresford got to his feet to leave, she made a little gesture. "Would you not be disappointed if this adventure were to end now? You see, you are a man and I know a little about men." She smiled provokingly. "You would leave without a reward?"

Beresford glanced at his watch.

"Just five. For reward I should like nothing better than that you dine with me. But I was forgetting Mr. Cartwright..." Her eyes saddened. "I am a widow," she said. "But I will dine with you—in my home. I have friends here now. I had invited three so that we could have bridge, but at the last moment one sent regrets. If you would care—" Delighted, Beresford followed Mrs. Cartwright into a cosy reception room where he was introduced to a Mr. and Mrs. Forsyth. Both were in their late thirties, well-groomed, interesting. As they sipped cocktails, Mrs. Cartwright asked the Forsyths: "Wasn't it lucky Jack turning up unexpectedly? Now we can have our bridge after all."

They took their places around a table charming with silver, crystal and flowers. The food was of the best and the talk animated. Mrs. Cartwright became increasingly vivacious and looked even lovelier. Beresford had difficulty in keeping his eyes away.

Presently they adjourned to another room, where they drew for partners and began to play. When the game broke up, Beresford had lost several hundred dollars. But, well-to-do, he considered the evening worth it. He had learned that Mrs. Cartwright's first name was Yvonne and had extracted a promise to dine with him the following evening.

But Mrs. Cartwright telephoned him in the morning, putting off their engagement indefinitely. Her soft voice was very alluring and vibrant with regret as she explained why. Disappointing. Beresford decided, but he could wait.

The same afternoon he had occasion to take another taxi. Coincidence is strange and its ramifications unpredictable. Aware of this, Beresford's feelings were mixed as he again spied a bag behind the seat cushion. Ivory with black trimmings. Chiffon handkerchief with the initial Y. Compact and a lipstick. A five-dollar bill and some silver. Cards engraved with the name and address of a Mrs. Glenison Cartwright. And a memo pad on which was written: Telephone Ted; ditto Beatrice; call at Jewellers; cocktails, The Barn, Arthur; dinner at 7 with ?

Recalling his bridge losses, Beresford now could understand the why of "Dinner at 7 with ?" His lips twitching, he tucked the bag behind the cushion.

After all, a girl must live! (Copyright Wheeler Newspaper Syndicate)

Reports Tourist Traffic Increase At Churchill

CHURCHILL, Man.—Residents of this northern Manitoba port are describing this summer as the one in which the tourists are outnumbering the black flies.

That, to a Churchillian, is an achievement any way you look at it. The black flies have been chased into partial hiding by colder than average temperatures. Tourists, on the other hand, have increased in numbers until they almost double the town's population when their special trains are in.

So far this year two tourist trains have reached this town, 600 miles north of Winnipeg, each with approximately 300 passengers aboard. More trains are scheduled, apart from the normal weekly runs. The town's population, excluding personnel at the military base seven miles away, is about 400. Publicity devoted to northern defence and to life in general within the fringe of the Arctic circle is said to have awakened in both Canadians and Americans a desire to see the country for themselves.

Churchill now is one of the most popular northern tourist destinations, partly because of its rail accessibility, but it is freely predicted that within the next few years Canada's entire northern front will become the objective of travellers.

Insofar as this town is concerned, tourists now arriving are seeing it at one of its busiest seasons. Houses are mushrooming, there is a certain amount of industrial development and the shipping season is in full swing.

Quota Wheat Deliveries At Prairie Points

WINNIPEG.—The Canadian wheat board has placed five Manitoba points and one Saskatchewan point "on quota" for wheat deliveries.

At these points, farmers can only deliver 20 bushels of wheat per seeded acre. The Manitoba stations were Culross, Eden, Lavinia, Fenrith and Roseburn. In Saskatchewan, Clemens was placed on a similar quota for wheat and oats—20 bushels per seeded acre.

The board also named 11 Manitoba points where only 10 bushels of oats per seeded acre may be delivered. The 11 stations included the five points on wheat quota and Glenella, Grebas, Longburn, Lyleton, Oakville and Winkler.

Two Saskatchewan, five Alberta and 38 Manitoba points were marked by the board as open delivery stations.

Improving Farm Practices

There may be considerable differences of opinion about the marketing of prairie farm products.
There are, however, no differences of opinion about the importance of maintaining and of improving the quality of farm products, or about the necessity of farmers adopting the very best methods of improving yields and of keeping down costs of production.

In this important work our Universities and Dominion Experimental Farms are efficient leaders. These Institutions each year hold a number of formal field days where farmers are invited to come and see with their own eyes
what the scientific agriculturist is finding out about the best farm practices; what he has in the way of new varieties of cereal, field root, forage and garden vegetable crops and strains of livestock, and what the scientist has in the making for the future use of farmers.

Year by year the attendance of farmers at these field days has been steadily increasing, indicating that farmers are taking ever greater interest in efficient agriculture, so assuring that prairie farmers will be better able to meet competition in the sale of their products on world markets.

The advancement of agriculture and the improvement in the welfare of farmers are matters with which all can wholeheartedly cooperate.

Bank of Montreal Crop Report

ALBERTA—Fair weather continues. Harvesting of early grains is well advanced in southern regions. In central and northern areas, where scattered frost and hail damage is reported, harvesting operations have commenced, but will be prolonged due to varying maturity of second growth grain crops. A better than average beet crop is in prospect.

SASKATCHEWAN—Cutting is general, with some threshing in progress. While extreme heat has reduced yields somewhat, average to good crops are still indicated in northern, eastern and parts of the central districts. In the remaining areas, wheat out-turns are light, coarse grains being cut for feed. Light, localized hail damage has occurred.

MANITOBA—Harvesting generally is in full swing. Threshing and combining operations in southern districts are well advanced toward completion. Showers are reported in most areas, although continued high temperatures have prevailed. Yields are mainly up to expectations, with little or no damage evident. Garden crops are improved. Pastures are good.

Canadian oil production in 1948 showed an increase of some 60 per cent over 1947 and 63 per cent over 1946. This gain was mainly due to the discovery and development of the Leduc and Woodbend fields.

Coast-to-coast radio programs are not "broadcast" in the way most people imagine. An air show from one city is "piped" by railway telegraph lines to individual radio stations across the country and "aired" locally from each of them.

Canada and the United States share the busiest canal in the world—the Saut Ste. Marie ship canal.

A Canadian workman in 1949
works half as many hours a week
as his grandfather and receives, in terms of purchasing power, five times his grandfather's wages.

Public opinion polls disclose the public belief that investors in business corporations get 25 cents from every dollar of sales. The fact is that the Canadian investor receives less than two cents from a dollar sale.

Canadians eat more than, five pounds of cheese per capita every year.
